

Prof. Dr. Saulius Geniusas, Chinese University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong

Saulius Geniusas is Professor of Philosophy at The Chinese University of Hong Kong. He is one of the most prolific philosophers in Hong Kong and a recognized phenomenologist worldwide. He has published four single-authored books, edited and co-edited seven books, and published more than sixty articles in various journals and anthologies. He is the recipient of CUHK's Research Excellence Award and his book, The Phenomenology of Pain (Ohio University Press, 2020), won the Edward Ballard Prize. He has been awarded twelve competitive research grants, including the Humboldt Research Fellowship for Experienced Researchers and three GRF grants from the Research Grants Council in Hong Kong.

Geniusas' research is mainly focused on phenomenology and hermeneutics. Geniusas strives to advance phenomenological and hermeneutical research into areas that remain unexplored. Over the last ten years, most of his investigations have unfolded in two main directions, one of which concerns the phenomenology of pain, while the other is the phenomenology of imagination. Over the last years, he has been increasingly interested in the structures and varieties of self-awareness. In recent years, he has also published articles on William James's and Alfred Schutz's concepts of multiple realities, on the phenomenology of dreams, on the relation between phenomenology and deconstruction, on the phenomenology of music and the phenomenology of aesthetic experience, as well as on the relation between phenomenology and hermeneutics. Geniusas' research develops toward the further investigation of sedimentations and the intersections between phenomenology, hermeneutics, and deconstruction.
